WEBSITE CHANGES

The website updates should focus on improving fluidity and dynamism, introducing more subtle movement throughout the pages. This includes adding parallax effects to images and applying smooth entrance and exit animations in selected sections.

Typography should follow the defined font size hierarchy to ensure better readability. All design elements should consistently use the brand’s light blue color to maintain visual identity and coherence.

Maintain the same footer across the entire website.

Please avoid using dark color tones and avoid cropping images.

Parallax Effect Specification

Use the same parallax style as the oldl website.

Parallax effect:
Use a classic fixed background parallax, where the image remains fixed while the content scrolls over it.
This can be achieved with:

- `background-attachment: fixed;`
- `background-position: center;`
- `background-size: cover;`
- `background-repeat: no-repeat;`

The goal is to create a subtle depth effect where the background moves slower than the page scroll, matching the original site.

Height settings:
Set the hero section to:

- `height: 80vh;`
- `max-height: 850px;`
- `min-height: 700px;`

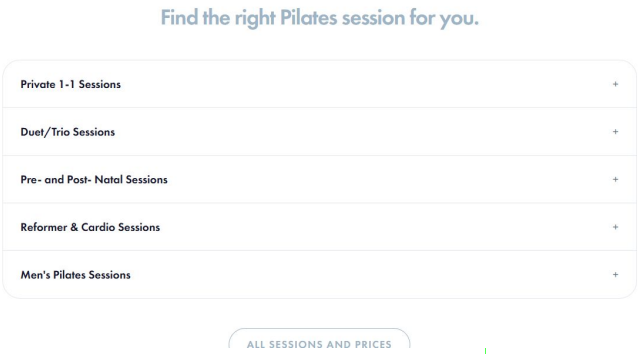
Text Standardization – Hyperlink Style (Sitewide)

Standardize all text hyperlinks across the entire website to match the original website style.

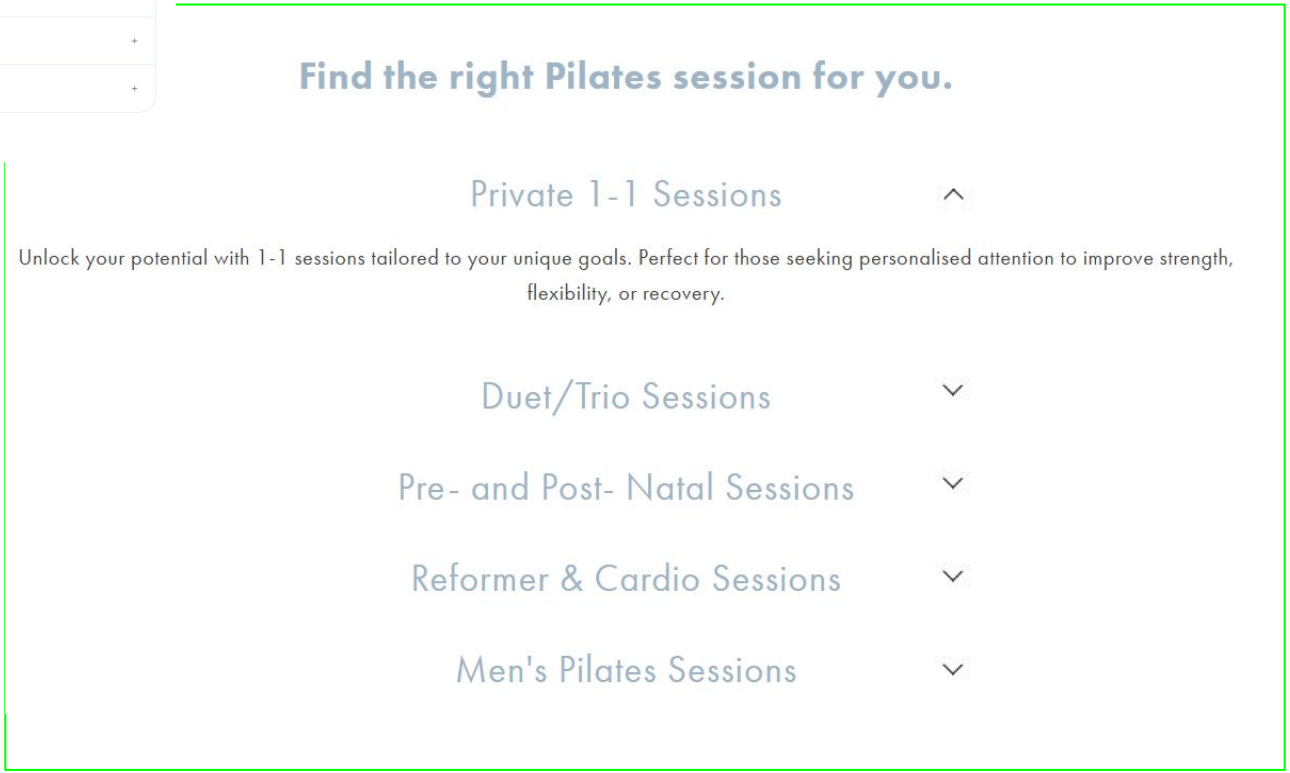
- Use the site's blue brand color
- Bold font weight
- Keep the underline visible
- Maintain a consistent hover behavior

All internal links (such as "Master Physio-Pilates instructors") should follow this styling throughout the whole website to ensure visual consistency and brand identity.

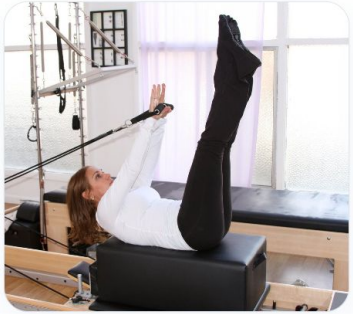


Change this section to match the previous website's style while keeping the accordion layout.

Move the icons (arrows) closer to the section titles so they visually belong to the headings. As shown in the image beside.



Place the photos in the same style as the previous website.



BOOKING

Apply the same hover behavior used on the Email button to the WhatsApp and Phone buttons, so all contact options appear interactive and link directly to their respective actions (WhatsApp chat and phone call).

ABOUT
(OUR INSTRUCTIONS)

Patricia A. Robinson

Patricia A. Robinson is a certified physiotherapist and master Pilates instructor with over 20 years of experience. As a member of "The Prodigy," the second generation of Pilates instructors trained by the original Elders, she has learned from first-generation teachers trained by Joseph Pilates. Patricia has created her own method within the Pilates methodology. She certifies teachers globally and has developed her own Pilates certification training and studio licensing programme in the United States.

Patricia's method, "Conscience of Movement through Pilates," helps clients learn to conscientiously move their bodies, gaining a greater sense of what they are doing with their muscles when they move. They learn how to control their movements, enhancing strength, flexibility, and overall well-being.

She prioritises quality over repetition, ensuring precision and purpose in each movement. She believes that each body needs an individual approach and each individual needs to understand the correct movements to achieve their body goals.

Through this combination of consistent movement and correct exercises for personal performance, Patricia integrates fitness, nutrition, and natural healing for a comprehensive wellness experience. Her dedication to continuous learning ensures she can address each client's unique needs, helping them move better, feel better, and live better. She believes that conscious, consistent movement is the key to health and ageless individuals.

Pilates Sessions

Pilates improves balance, coordination, muscle tone, core strength, flexibility, and posture. Whether you're a beginner, intermediate, or advanced client, you can work around physical issues or injuries, as the equipment provides essential support. Our sessions utilise the Reformer, Chair, Trapeze Table (Cadillac), and Barre. Please note, we do not offer floor Pilates sessions; we only offer Pilates on equipment.

Physiotherapy

We integrate physiotherapy principles into our Pilates sessions, enhancing each workout's benefits. Trained to apply techniques promoting mindful movement, alleviating discomfort, and improving posture, our instructors leverage their deep understanding of physiotherapy. Whether recovering from surgery, managing chronic conditions, or enhancing flexibility and strength, our tailored approach ensures you receive utmost care and support for overall well-being.

Reformer

The reformer is a versatile piece of equipment featuring a moving carriage attached to springs for resistance. It offers a comprehensive full-body workout suitable for individuals of all fitness levels. Whether you're overcoming physical limitations or seeking a challenge, the reformer delivers. By incorporating this unique equipment into your routine, you'll develop core strength, enhance flexibility, improve coordination, achieve better posture, and sculpt long, lean muscles.

Cadillac

The Cadillac is a cornerstone of Pilates equipment, aptly named for its versatility and myriad features. Designed by Joseph Pilates himself, it offers a comprehensive array of exercises. As you progress in your practice, the Cadillac allows for advanced movements, including acrobatic feats such as hanging upside down.

Separate the Pilates Sessions and Physiotherapy boxes and remove them from the large container box. As it is now, it looks like the information belongs together.

ABOUT (OUR STORY)

Pilates Vita

Founded by Patricia A. Robinson in 2006 in the USA, and subsequently in St Maarten in 2014, San Francisco in 2018, and London in 2019, Pilates Vita embodies decades of experience and passion for Pilates. As a certified Physiotherapist and second-generation Master Pilates Instructor, Patricia ensures that every session is tailored to meet your unique needs, providing unparalleled professionalism and dedication to your well-being.

"VITA" means "LIFE" in Italian, echoing Joseph Pilates' vision to bring people back to a balanced, healthy life. Our mission at Pilates Vita is to guide you through the eight key principles of Pilates: Centering, Control, Concentration, Coordination, Breath, Balance, Flow, and Precision. Achieving these principles through precise movements and dedicated practice fosters mental focus and physical strength.

Our instructors are more than just teachers; they are dedicated experts who undergo rigorous training to deliver unparalleled instruction. Through an extensive certification programme and years of apprenticeship, our instructors master over 500 Pilates exercises, modifications, and variations.

This comprehensive knowledge equips them to prevent and manage injuries, understand individual physical limitations, and provide safe and effective guidance tailored to each client's unique needs. Committed to continuous education, they uphold the highest standards of excellence, ensuring every session is conducted with precision, care, and expertise. Our instructors are also fluent in several languages, allowing them to teach in English, Portuguese, French, and Spanish (Patricia) and English, Portuguese, and Italian (Suelen), ensuring clear communication and personalised instruction for a diverse clientele.

Patricia Robinson, Founder and Owner of Pilates Vita

I'm a certified Pilates instructor and a member of the Pilates Method Alliance, with extensive training in both Classic and Contemporary Pilates. Originally from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, I studied dance, the arts, journalism, and later physical therapy in the USA.

Through my years in these fields, I developed a passion for body movement, fitness, nutrition, and natural cures. I then pursued an extensive educational program in Holistic Body Healing Therapy, which has profoundly changed my life. The introduction of Pilates into my life complemented my existing knowledge and experiences related to healing the body and fitness simultaneously. For me, Pilates is a healing process, a workout, and most importantly, a pleasure in helping people connect better with their bodies and minds, providing everyone with the fluid feeling of conscious movement through Pilates.

In 2000, in Rio, I had my first contact with the Pilates Method, and for 20 years since then, it has become my life's work. In 2002, upon moving to Manhattan, USA, I practiced in three different studios. I was fortunate to learn from two wonderful Master teachers directly certified by Joseph Pilates himself. These first-generation teachers instilled in me the passion to become a master teacher and carry on the legacy and privilege of learning the pure Pilates Method from the first generation of Pilates teachers worldwide, for which I am humbly thankful.

In 2003, I moved to San Francisco, continuing my Pilates training. In 2006, after relocating to Scottsdale, Arizona, I decided to dedicate my life full-time to Pilates and Physical Therapy. I opened my first Pilates Vita studio in Denver, Colorado, where I resided for eight years, teaching Pilates every day. There, I not only had the pleasure of teaching my clients but also initiated my own Pilates Certification program for teacher trainees, whom I fondly refer to as my kids. I trained some amazing teachers who continue to spread the seeds of their knowledge with the same passion that I instilled in them. They are continuing the legacy in the correct and ethical ways as Joseph Pilates brought to us in his Method, "Contrology" - when you control your body instead of your body controlling you.

Over the past four years, I dedicated myself to developing an incredible Pilates Retreat on the stunning Dutch & French Caribbean islands of St. Maarten & St Barth. There, I had the privilege of working with clients from around the world, teaching and speaking in four different languages. It was an enriching experience that led to lifelong friendships across the globe. I am immensely grateful for this journey.

Pilates Legacy: Where Movement Becomes Medicine

Pilates is far more than a sequence of exercises. It is a philosophy of movement that teaches the body how to function with intelligence, efficiency, and harmony. Created by Joseph Pilates, the method was originally called Contrology—a name that reveals its true essence: the conscious control of body and mind working as one.

In today's world, Pilates stands at the intersection of classical discipline and modern rehabilitation. It serves elite athletes, dancers, pregnant women, seniors, people in pain, and those recovering from injury. It is one of the few movement systems capable of adapting to every body, at every stage of life.

What makes Pilates timeless is not only the equipment or the exercises, but the principles that govern every movement.

The principles of Pilates are: centering, control, coordination, breathing, balance, precision, and flow — together creating true mind–body connection.

They are not just technical guidelines, but a language the nervous system understands. Through them, movement becomes intelligent, intentional, and healing.

- Centering brings awareness to the core, where power originates.
- Control teaches the body to move with purpose rather than impulse.
- Coordination integrates the whole body into unified action.
- Breathing oxygenates tissues and regulates the nervous system.
- Balance restores symmetry between strength and mobility.
- Precision refines movement so every action has meaning.
- Flow transforms exercise into a continuous, graceful experience.

When these principles are honored, Pilates becomes more than fitness—it becomes therapy.

In clinical and physical-therapy contexts, Pilates offers something rare: a bridge between rehabilitation and performance. It retrains the body after injury, corrects dysfunctional movement patterns, and restores trust in motion. For those living with chronic pain, scoliosis, hypermobility, post-surgical limitations, or neurological conditions, Pilates provides safety with progression—structure with freedom.

Unlike repetitive gym routines, Pilates educates. It teaches clients how to move, how to breathe, how to listen. It creates awareness where there was disconnection, strength where there was fear, and fluidity where there was rigidity.

This is the true legacy of Pilates.

It is not about perfect bodies.

It is about intelligent bodies.

Not about forcing change, but about teaching the body to heal itself.

Whether practiced on the Mat, the Reformer, the Cadillac, or in a therapeutic studio, Pilates remains a living method—one that evolves with science while preserving its original soul.

In every generation, Pilates continues to whisper the same message:
Move with purpose. Breathe with presence.
Let your body become your ally.

WHAT IS PILATES (INTRODUCTION TO PILATES)

Pilates emphasises quality of movement—precision, control and breath—creating strength that transfers into daily life.

Image head is cut off.

engineering. He created equipment to help rehabilitate wounded soldiers.

On his way to the U.S., he met Clara, who became his second wife. In 1926, they introduced his method in New York, opening a studio on Eighth Avenue.

Initially, he worked mostly with men, especially boxers. Their studio was in a building with many dance studios. By the late 1930s, notable dancers like George Balanchine and Martha Graham sent their dancers to him.

Over his lifetime, he developed a scientific body conditioning system that transformed the health and bodies of its practitioners. His mat work emphasized quality and precision rather than quantity of repetitions, integrating correct form and posture into daily activities.

Joseph H. Pilates passed away in 1967 at eighty-seven. Clara continued the studio for ten more years until her passing. His certified pupils, the first generation of Pilates teachers, continued spreading his work. Pilates Vita's owner, Patricia A. Robinson, trained with two first-generation teachers, Ron Fletcher and Lolita San Miguel.

WHAT IS PILATES (SEVEM PRINCIPLES OF PILATES)

Breath

All exercises are performed with rhythm and dynamism, connecting heartbeat and respiration through perfectly timed breathing.

Centering

All movements are controlled through the centre, or "powerhouse." Exercises are done with proper alignment to maintain balance in the body.

Balance

Learn how to move your body with the precise balance required for the equipment you're using to ensure a safe and effective workout.

Control

When performing exercises properly, you control all your body movements. Habit does not guide the execution of the exercises.

Coordination

Exercises on a Pilates apparatus require perfect coordination to be executed correctly.

Precision

Exercises are performed with clear structure and precise form. The work emphasises quality, not quantity, to achieve the full benefit of each exercise.

Flow

The workout is designed for one exercise to flow naturally into the next, with minimal movement between exercises to create maximum flow.

Patricia is the best pilates teacher I've worked with in my 20 plus years of doing pilates. Every class is fun and she always introduces new exercises and keeps the classes interesting. You have to try a class to see how awesome she is, you won't be disappointed!

Rhonda M

I am so happy my eyes have been opened to how a person should learn Pilates. I have been to many well-known Pilates classes in central London and they definitely do not teach the proper way of doing Pilates. Patricia is so warm and friendly and really loves what she does.
